

Wedding.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Michael's Church of England, Wollongong, by the Rev. D'Arcy Irvine, M.A., on Wednesday last, the contracting parties being Mr. Guido Weber, second son of Carl Weber, Esq., surveyor, Wollongong, and Miss Eleanor Talbot, fourth daughter of R. H. Talbot Esq., Mackay, Queensland. The bride wore a charming costume of fine cream serge, trimmed with white satin ribbon and chiffon, and a handsome spray of orange blossoms and snowdrops worn on the bodice gave it a most effective appearance. A toque of silver straw, trimmed with tips, cream silk, and handsome brilliant buckles, contrasted prettily with her dark hair and completed the charming costume. The bride was attended by the Misses Weber, sisters of the bridegroom, and they wore pretty costumes of fawn and salmon pink, and carried handsome bouquets. The bride's bouquet of snowdrops, autumn leaves, and pale pink rosebuds was much admired. After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of Mr. Weber, and at 3.30 p.m., the happy couple left by the train for Sylvania. The bride's travelling dress was a grass green cloth worn with a toque relieved with magenta roses. One striking feature about this wedding was that as the happy couple left the church, the sun shone between the stormy clouds.
